AUTOIST A VICTIM

Mones-en Man Killed When Machine Tumbles Over Bank

HIS SON IS INJURED

Wreck Occurs Late Saturday Night on the Steep Millsboro Road

Charles Jordan, aged 64 years of Monessen, was killed and his son, Jules Jordan, also of Monessen, was painfully injured when their automobile went over a steep 100 foot embankment at Millsboro Saturday night at 11 o'clock while they were on their way home from Waynesburg. William Boddice and Walter Smith of Monessen, who were in the car, were unhurt.

With the younger Jordan driving they had gone to Waynesburg in the morning and had started home late in the evening.

In descending the hill into what is known as Hays Hollow along Ten Mile creek on the Greene county side the driver of the machine in some manner lost control of the car and it shot over the bank. When the big car hit the ground at the bottom of the abyss Charles Jordan, the elder man, jumped from the car. He came in contact with a pile of stone and his neck was broken and practically every bone in the body broken. The son also jumped.

Word was sent to Millsboro and to Clarksburg and Undertaker E. L. Kerr rushed to the place in his automobile and brought the dead man to his mortuary. The three injured men were then placed in the car of Mr. Kerr and a run made to the Charleroi hospital. In just one hour and 20 minutes Mr. Kerr had the injured men in the hospital.

Boddice and Smith went home after an examination. Dr. Day of Clarksburg and Dr. Hoge of Rice's Landing gave first aid after the accident.

The machine in which the men were riding was practically demolished. The dead victim of the accident was removed to the home of his daughter Mrs. Joseph Monack at Monessen Sunday evening.

The Jordans are well known people in this community. Jules Jordan is a roller at the Pittsburg Steel mill at Monessen, where a brother Harry of Belle Vernon is also employed. The elder Jordan who was killed had been living a retired life. His wife died four years ago. Charles Jordan a son lives at Weirton, W. Va. Mrs. Fred Clarke a daughter, lives at Folsom, W. Va.

SUNDAY PROGRAM IS CHAUTAUQUA FEATURE

Closing Session Marked by Lecture by Judge Kavanaugh

SEEKS BETTER LAWS

With a lecture by Judge Marcus A. Kavanaugh, of Chicago on "Traitors to Justice," and an evening sacred concert by the Deane Grand Opera company, the Charleroi Chautauqua was brought to a close Sunday. Sunday night Superintendent Otis C. Lester and his crew of young college men started for Waynesburg in charge of their tent and equipment. They will be there for seven days was presented at Charleroi.

"Reforms are accomplished not by the aid of the legal profession but in spite of it," declared Judge Kavanaugh in his lecture Sunday afternoon. He was emphatic in his declaration that justice as administered in the United States had become more or less of a travesty. His arguments were to the point for the establishment of a simplified code of laws insuring the proper and sure punishment of criminals and the equitable and just treatment of all classes.

Judge Kavanaugh started his lecture by giving statistics concerning the number of homicides in the United States. He said that figures had been compiled to prove that the United States annually has 90 homicides to every million of population, while Canada has but 13. Of various European countries the highest rate of homicides per million of population

CLOSE CALL WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Hilda Crites Practically Uninjured After Experience With Strange Automobile

When Hilda Crites, aged 10, the daughter of William Crites, of Pike road was struck by the running board of a speeding automobile as she was walking along Lincoln avenue extension near the garbage furnace Saturday night she had a narrow escape. Her injuries were slight, consisting mostly of a bruised and cut wrist and hand.

It is asserted that the automobile, which was driven by an unknown was traveling at an excessive rate of speed. It swerved, according to the story just as it was passing the girl, and she was struck glancingly by the running board. She was thrown aside and the auto went on it is stated at undiminished speed. Police Sunday were busy looking for the culprit.

Only the prompt action of Motorman Oliver Michener, of the Pittsburg-Charleroi electric street railway line prevented the death or serious injury of Robert Clarke, aged 6 years, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, of Speers on Saturday afternoon late.

LAKE TRADE SHOWS MUCH SLACKENING

Pittsburg District Suffers From Slow Business in the Coal Industry

Pittsburg coal companies which have been making shipments to the lakes for the North eastern markets under a reduced rate for weeks were notified last week that the last of the large coal storage docks on the upper lakes had been filled up and further shipments to that point would have to cease until the congestion diminishes. According to reports, this change will not be possible before the middle of August when the grain movement from the Northwest starts.

The stopping of the coal shipments is holding in check the movement to increase coal production in the district and in some instances additional mines running exclusively on lake coal have been shut down.

Only the prompt action of Motorman Oliver Michener, of the Pittsburg-Charleroi electric street railway line prevented the death or serious injury of Robert Clarke, aged 6 years, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clark, of Speers on Saturday afternoon late.

Michener was motoring a car toward Charleroi, and was bowling along at a fair rate of speed, when suddenly he beheld a few feet in front of him a child's head above the ties. Brakes were applied and the reverse shot on. The consequence was that the car stopped with the front end of it hovering over the child. His hand rested on a rail almost under the wheel.

The boy was pulled out from his precarious position and examined. He was slightly scratched, but beyond that no injuries showed.

HORSE INSURANCE IS BEING ASKED BY OWNERS

Seth Allman of Bentleyville has instituted suit against the Farmers and Breeders Mutual Reserve Fund, Live stock Insurance Co., of United States, doing business at Williamsport, to recover $225 for his horse "Jerry," which died in June. Mr. Allman sets forth in his declaration that he insured "Jerry" with the defendant company through the agent, W. J. Sperling, and paid to the semi-annual premium of $8.70 and received his policy. The policy was delivered March 21, 1914 and in June "Jerry" became ill of lung fever and died. The defendant company it is alleged has refused to pay the claim or the amount of the policy. Allman is a hauling contractor at Bentleyville.

CONTAINS 40 MEMBERS

J. R. Blythe will be scout master and scout commissioner to carry on the Boy Scout movement in Charleroi which was organized by Scoutmaster B. W. Armstrong during the Redbach Chautauqua last week. There are at present about 10 boys in the troop. During the Chautauqua they were admitted between the ages of 10 and 16 years, but in the future the ages will be from 12 to 16.

The Boy Scout movement which started in England is rapidly gaining ground in the United States. Aside from keeping the boys out of mischief and idleness the movement is one for the teaching of them to do things both outside and in doors. The boy scouts are taught to the knots, to swim, row a boat, signal with flags, to start a fire without matches, to make a stretcher out of a coat, poles and two coats, the calls of birds, names and different uses of plants, first aid work in case of injury or drowning and many other things.

Boy Scouts are taught that they must be loyal, kind to each other and to every person and thing that lives, must respect their parents, must never lie, s.e.a.l. be disrespectful to aged persons or discourteous to ladies, and must always be ready to help whenever the occasion arises.

CANCELLATION OF MACCABEE DATE FORCED

Outing at Eldora Park for Tomorrow Stopped by Scarlet Fever at Donora

P. H. C. WILL PICNIC

After announcement had been made of the picnic and outing of the Lady Maccabees of the valley under the auspices of the Donora hive, a cancellation of the date this Tuesday has been made necessary, through action of the board of health at Donora.

At Donora a scarlet fever epidemic has been raging and all possible efforts have been made to break it up. As one means of stopping the spread of scarlet fever the board of health has asked various societies to cancel arrangements for picnics. The Lady Maccabees hive was among them.

On Thursday, however, there will be a valley picnic held, as previously announced. It will be the annual outing of Protected Home Circles from along the entire Monongahela valley in this nearby vicinity. The picnic will be made a big feature. As a climax to their picnic these lodges will hold a dance on Thursday evening.

ROAD WORK UNDER WAY

State Highway Department Busy Throughout The District

CHARLEROI INTERESTED

Over $1,000 Needed at Present For Improvement of Maple Creek Road

The ten days that have passed since it was decided that the automobile license fund should be turned over to the state highway department for maintenance and repair of roads, have demonstrated that the amount of work necessary to put the highways in good shape far exceeds expectations. Nearly four thousand men have been laboring at, top speed all over the state and while great improvement has been noticed in the condition of the roads, officials of the state highway department assert that it will be several weeks before a general idea can be gained of the vast amount of work that is being done. The fiscal officers of the commonwealth, after prolonged litigation in which they were defeated, agreed to pay over to the state highway commissioner the automobile funds necessary to insure good roads throughout the state. The amount involved in the 1914 fund was approximately $1,150,000 while $250,000 remained from the unexpended portion of the 1913 funds.

In view of the lateness of the season and the vast amount of work to be done in filling up holes, cleaning out ditches, culverts and gutters, and shaping up and rolling the highways, the state highway department has decided not to begin resurfacing on state highways until the general condition of the roads has been improved. A fact not generally understood is that the automobile license money is the only fund available for repairing, maintenance or construction of state highways. There is an unexpended balance for the maintenance and repair of state aid highways and the state highway department has been working on these roads. The amount of state aid maintenance money now remaining is about $25,000.

From time to time additional authorizations will be made by the maintenance division for repairs on these roads. On many of these state aid highways the repairs are extensive including resurfacing with bituminous material and a practical reconstruction of the road to secure a better and more lasting highway.

In the district comprising Fayette, Greene and Washington counties $20,000.00 has been authorized this year in Fayette county on the Unionville and Connelville road through North Union township $1,419 is needed. Twenty-eight men and two teams have been doing the work. On the road leading from Ohio Pyle borough southwest to the National Pike a distance of a mile in Stewart township $700 was spent. The Connelville road running north from the B. & O. railroad in North Union township for one mile needs $2,745, and 28 men, with three teams, have been working there. The road running

AGAINST "THIRD DEGREE"

The upper house of the Georgia legislature has set a splendid example in the passage of a bill making the "third degree" unlawful. Says the Indianapolis News: It always was and is unlawful for the matter of fact, but it has become a part of the systematic lawlessness which the police of the country indulge in.

Stated simply it is a self-constituted inquisition which, in secret, endeavors to extort from the prisoner—before trial—an admission of guilt. Every kind of mental torture and anguish is used to wear the victim down or confuse him into any kind of confession. Sometimes physical torture is used. In a case that happened here the prisoner remained obdurate before his inquisitor, when as prearranged, the latter said, looking beyond the prisoner: "Don't hit him!" meaning to convey the impression that a policeman stood behind him and was ready to hit him on the head with a club. It was all true except that there was no intention of hitting him. It was meant simply to frighten him. It succeeded.

That is the kind of thing that goes on at police headquarters in several all over this country. And we call this a land where a man has a right to a free, impartial and unimpaired trial in court with an attorney assigned for his defense in case he is too poor to hire an attorney. Such is the meaning of the "third degree." It is just as unlawful as the proceedings of Mexican bandits, and quite as bad, for policemen are supposed not to be bandits, but officers of the law.

The French law provides for an inquisition. But it is conducted by a judge, before whom the prisoner is arraigned duly in the presence of witnesses. The judge interrogates him to see if the prisoner can be entrapped into any kind of admission of guilt. After this he is placed regularly on trial. But with us policemen assume the right to do a similar thing and reinforce it by secrecy, and by the use of torture and long hours of badgering to wear the victim out. It is a black stain on the American name. Every state in the Union ought to forbid it under severe penalties; and meanwhile public opinion should make it impossible.

PALMER GETS A TIP

A. Mitchell Palmer, Democratic boss of Pennsylvania, and Democratic candidate for United States senator, has paid an official visit to the senate sub-committee on postoffices and postroads and has told that distinguished body exactly what he thinks of it.

Mr. Palmer went to the senate sub-committee in his capacity of chief distributor for this state. He protested that the place grabbers in the state were making his life a burden and urged that his appointments to postoffices and other places be confirmed.

Mr. Palmer insisted that Senator Boise Penrose was responsible for holding up the appointments and he argued that the Democratic members of the sub-committee act in the matter of confirmations without even consulting Senator Penrose.

Mr. Palmer's suggestion was not popular. It brought out quite a lot of information, however. Members of the senate sub-committee produced records showing that quite a lot of Mr. Palmer's appointments were unfit for the places for which they had been appointed and that prominent Democrats in the several districts of this state had protested against the confirmation of the unfit ones. Prominent among the protesting Democrats from Pennsylvania was Jere S. Black, the Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor of this state in 1904. Mr. Black's protest against the confirmation of several appointments to the eastern end of the state was particularly strong. He alleged unfairness of the appointments. In several other cases in the western end of the state the same kind of protest were shown. Mr. Palmer was finally told that unless he did not pay to comply with the confirmation.

It is probable that all the postmasters named in the investigation of Mr. Palmer will be confirmed within a short time. But before confirmation the postoffice department will be supplied with the evidence given the sub-committee of the senate on the records of the appointments.

It is evident that Mr. Palmer is not succeeding well with his determination to place the responsibility for the delay in confirming his appointments upon Senator Penrose. Democratic senators are responsible and they have assumed that responsibility to give Mr. Palmer a chance to correct the many mistakes he has made in his factional recommendations.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Anderson owned a poolroom and late one night his German friend, Hans found him nodding in his doorway.

"Why can't you go to bed?" asked the Dutchman, according to the story as related by a magazine.

"I can't," replied Anderson. Two guys are back there playing pool."

"Why don't you break up their game and make them go home?"

"I've tried to but I can't. I gave them two or three hints, but they took no notice of them."

Hans assumed an expression of determination.

"Leave it to me," he said. "I'll give 'em a hint."

In a few minutes he returned from the back of the poolroom to where Anderson was sitting.

"It's all right," he said, much gratified. "They're going home."

"How did you fix it?" inquired Anderson.

"Oh," said Hans with an air of indifference. "I gave 'em a hint."

"How?"

"I just took the balls off the table."

PATRONS OF "MANLY ART"

Five Monarchs of Great Britain Noted for Their Admiration of the Fistic Game.

When King George V recently attended a public exhibition of boxing at the barracks of the Second Life Guards, and applauded the exhibition of the "manly art" furnished by Boxer Wells and Pat O'Keefe, as well as the bouts between soldier pugilists, he did not establish a royal precedent. Every one of the five Georges who have ruled Great Britain has been a patron of boxing and enthusiastic in his admiration of the sport. George II, who ascended the throne just two centuries ago this year, was the first royal boxer. The modern fistic game had its beginning during his reign when James Figg of Thame, Oxfordshire, became the first champion of England. George I, until his death, did everything in his power to promote the boxing game. When his son, George II, came to the throne in 1728 he gave royal encouragement to the sport and took private lessons from Broughton. The latter is said to have invented the first "gloves" (called "mufflers"), in order to prevent the possibility of damage to the royal countenance. George III was even more enthusiastic in his admiration of boxing than his predecessors. He boxed well, and, a century ago, he gave a boxing show to celebrate the triumph over Napoleon, the spectators including the rulers of Russia and Prussia. An ex-champ, Jem Belcher, was asked to form a coronation guard of honor, composed of boxers, when George IV (a brilliant boxer) was crowned in 1820. William IV was not interested in boxing, and Queen Victoria is said to have sought to stamp it out. Under George V it is apparent that boxing is to be again in royal favor. The king long ago learned how to box.

Uncle Joe radiates humor. Former Speaker illustrates small "kick" by relating really good little story.

"Well, boys, I'm on my way to Bermuda to boil out," said Uncle Joe Cannon to a group of New York reporters. "I hope you'll have cheaper taxicab fares when I get back."

"Do you think our taxicab rates are high, sir?" asked a young lady reporter.

Uncle Joe, chewing the end of his cigar, smiled grimly.

"Did you never hear of the New York house-breaker?" he said. "Well, a house-breaker rose up from behind a hat rack in a New York house as the owner entered late one night."

"Throw up your hands!" he said.

"The owner did so."

"Gimme all yer money."

"But," said the owner, "I've just come home in a taxicab."

"The house-breaker's ferocious manner changed. He looked at his victim kindly. Then, putting his hand in his pocket, he said:

"Here, my poor fellow, is a quarter for ye. So long."

New York's First Steam Ferryboats.

One hundred years ago the first steam ferryboat between New York and Brooklyn, named the Nassau, began running. Two years previously the first steam ferry between New York and New Jersey was established. For many years, until the opening of the Brooklyn bridge in 1883, the ferryboats afforded the only method of regular transportation between the two populous cities separated by the East river. In the course of time the service expanded until hundreds of the steam ferryboats were plying between Manhattan and various points on the Long Island and New Jersey shores and the islands in the bay and the East river. With the completion of new bridges and the opening of the tunnels under the East and North rivers the ferry traffic has diminished and doubtless in time will become extinct.

Very Easy.

The late Charles H. Cramp, the Philadelphia shipbuilder, had little sympathy with Socialism and he used to tell this story:

"I had a Socialist draughtsman in my shipyard," so he would begin. "The draughtsman said to me one day:

"The world's all wrong, Mr. Cramp. If I had my way I'd make a new law compelling the rich to divide up everything with the poor and then we'd all start equal. Wouldn't that be grand, eh?"

"Grand? No!" said I. "In ten years after that equal start there'd be the same inequality there is now."

"Then," said the draughtsman, cheerily—"then we'd divide up again. Divide up every ten years. It's as easy as rollin' off a log, ain't it?"

Peruvian Antiquities.

A remarkable collection of Peruvian antiquities, dating back, so archeologists believe, at least 3,000 years, has just been received by the American Museum of Natural History. In the collection are about 700 specimens of Nazca pottery and rare examples of textiles, feather work, and primitive slings decorated with quaint designs. It is by far the largest collection acquired by any museum in this country. Soon after the museum's collection was forwarded to New York the Peruvian government passed a law prohibiting the shipment of specimens of art to foreign countries. This early Peruvian art is so rare that a museum in Berlin has only four specimens of Nazca pottery.

COURTESY ALL TOO SCARCE

Cleveland Man Set Fine Example of the Duty of a Gentleman to the Fair Sex.

The youthful Walter Raleigh, spreading his velvet cloak on muddy earth for his queen to pass, is a pleasant historical picture. But the heart of a courteous gentleman may beat under the blouse of a workman as well as under the cloak of a courtier.

Last November the city of Cleveland, O., was cut off from the outer world by the worst storm of wind and sleet and snow in its history. Traction lines and railways were tied up for several days. Four days after the storm, a woman reached Cleveland to visit her sister. She knew that the cars were not yet running on the line she wished to take and so she took a car on another line that would take her to the city limits, where she hoped to connect with a car that would take her where she wanted to go.

Forty minutes later she stepped from the car at the edge of the city. Between her and the curbstone a wide stream of water six or eight inches deep was running. As she looked helplessly about, a workman whose hair was touched with gray left a group on the sidewalk, waded out to her and said: "Madam, you don't know me, and I don't know you, but if you'll let me, I'll be glad to help you to the sidewalk." She thanked him, and he took her suitcase to the curb, splashed back, and taking her up in his arms, waded with her to the walk. There he put her down dry-shod, carried her suitcase into a nearby store, and told her he would tell her when her car came; for he was also waiting for it.

Two hours later he waded with the suitcase to the long-delayed car, returned, and splashed once more through the stream of melting snow as he carried her to the step. Then he said: "I hope you'll be all right," and took a place at the opposite end of the car.—Youth's Companion

CONCERNING TAIL OF DOG

Varying Theories as to Whether Customary Appendage Is or Is Not Hereditary.

Edmund Perrier, the director of the Paris Museum of Natural History, publishes the results of experiments made by Philip de Vilmorin on the transmission of hereditary characteristics in dogs. He says: "Various breeds of dogs are without tails, such as Breton spaniels, Hungarian sheep dogs and various toy dogs."

M. de Vilmorin speculated as to whether this characteristic was hereditary. He had observed hundreds of dogs made by 27 crosses between dogs of different breeds. "The results showed that the characteristic of having no tail was dominant in the descendants of these dogs. It, therefore, appeared that dogs totally lacking tails were hybrids, while those having long tails were pure breed."

In crossing among themselves tailless dogs, M. de Vilmorin found 75 per cent without tails. These researches, M. Perrier said, conformed to the law of Mendel on hybrids and helped to clear the complex problem of heredity.

No Time to Waste.

A western physician has two children, Ernest and Alice, aged nine and eleven respectively. Recently the doctor and his wife made a week-end trip to the country, leaving the children at home with the servants. They were to return Monday night on a train due at ten o'clock. The children wanted to meet them at the depot, and of course received definite instructions not to do so.

When the parents arrived, at 11:30, their train being an hour and a half late, they were surprised to find Ernest and Alice waiting for them, and all alone. The mother rushed forward to expostulate, but was cut off by the shrill voice of Alice crying: "Hurry up, mother. Don't stop to talk. The taxi's up to $7.50 already!"

Colors of Music.

There has just been installed at Queen's hall in London a color organ for representing musical effects in terms of colored lights thrown upon a screen, which has been designed expressly for the deaf. Each note played produces a corresponding color, and the color combinations are said to cause the same delight to the deaf ear as the harmonious sounds of a composition do to the normal ear. The organ was devised by Prof. Wallace Rimington, and among those who have become very much interested in the project is M. Alexander Scriabin, a Russian composer, who has achieved a foremost position in European musical circles.

Wouldn't it.

A hearty laugh had gone almost around over the story of the fisherman who, to locate the place on the lake where he had had good luck, cut a stick in the side of his boat. "Almost around," for the Englishman sat solemn and silent. About five minutes later, however, he awoke with a roar of laughter, and when asked the trouble, replied: "Well, wouldn't it be a corking good joke if that fisherman got a different boat the next time he went out!"

Great Britain's Coal.

The output of coal in Great Britain during 1913 was 257,411,869 tons, an increase of 27,013,241 tons over the output of 1912. It is the highest on record.

HAD BUSINESS IN HIS MIND

Scotch Saloonkeeper Wrongly Credited With Proper Reverence for Holy Things.

Miss Jane Addams said at Hull house in Chicago apropos of the recent criticisms of the Illinois women's vote: "The anti's were, of course, determined to be dissatisfied with us. Because we elected men instead of women they were dissatisfied with that. Because we voted a lot of towns dry—that, too, dissatisfied them."

"They misinterpreted everything in their desire to arrive at dissatisfaction. Yes, their misinterpretations were as complete as the tourist's."

"A tourist one Saturday evening in Glasgow entered a saloon for a lemonade and saw in huge letters behind the bar, 'Remember the Sabbath.'"

"Quaffing his lemonade, the tourist told the landlord that it gave him very great pleasure to see a man of his profession show such becoming reverence to the day of rest."

"Oh," said the landlord, "that ain't my reason for putting that there sign up there. The idea is to remind my customers of the Sunday closing law, so's they'll bring their fasks to be filled on Saturday night."

For Those Who Wish to Reduce.

Do you always take every opportunity to walk when you can? If it is a matter of several blocks, do you take a car when it is possible? Take every opportunity to walk, but walk as if you really enjoyed it; put some energy into this exercise. Really make it an exercise. Do not eat more than one starchy food at a meal, drink plenty of water, but between meals, and, above all, eat enough to allay hunger, but stop there; do not continue as if you were never going to get another meal instead of one quite as heavy in another four or five hours. Another thing, sleep with plenty of fresh air circulating in your sleeping room and if you are very stout do with just sufficient sleep, and above all omit the nap in the middle of the day.

IN ENGLAND'S DRINKING AGE

Primate Asks Why Old-Time Drunkenness, According to Records, Was Winked At.

When did drunkenness become a general vice? was the question asked by the archbishop of Canterbury in an address at the anniversary meeting of the Church of England Temperance society.

Drunkenness, remarked the archbishop, "came in" only in a very incidental way in the books of the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. In the literature of those times one found Sabbath-breaking, profanity, blasphemy; and other offenses freely named, but drunkenness was alluded to in a very incidental way.

Mention was made in one book, said the archbishop, of special action taken to censure and punish parish clerks for being drunk during divine service. One had in that a very curious picture of the way in which the vice was regarded.

Was it, asked the archbishop, that drink did not produce so much drunkenness as it does today? Was it that the more active life, the more frequent riding on horseback, counteracted it? Was it that the mischief arising from the actual drunkenness was not realized? Or was drunkenness so common among the leading people that it was difficult for any one living in glass houses to throw stones? He suggested that some one should undertake the task of investigating the problem.

Nautical Operation.

The sailing tank ship Jules Henri of Marseilles recently underwent an operation at Rotterdam which transformed her into a motor tank ship. After the masts had been removed the vessel was cut in two. The parts were separated and a new section of about 50 feet placed amidships. Two Diesel motors, each of 500 horsepower, were then installed. The transformed motor tank ship now has a capacity of 3,000 tons of oil. After a first voyage to the Black sea the ship will be employed regularly between Europe and America.

FAMOUS OLD ENGLISH TAVERN

Jack Straw's Castle on Hampstead Heath Has Many Attractions for the Visitor.

Jack Straw's castle on Hampstead heath, which is mourning the death of its landlord, is one of those rather numerous inns whose claims to honor rest more on legend than on solid fact. It is true that every Dickensian goes there at least once in his life and there is solid warrant for the pilgrimage on the authority of John Forster.

In 1827 Dickens wrote to him proposing a winter tramp over the heath, with the added attraction of "I know a good 'ous there where we can have a red hot chop for dinner and a glass of good wine." Forster adds that this was the first of many happy meetings at Jack Straw's castle. But the story that Dickens often stayed there has not the same authority.

The other Jack Straw legend is that the peasant leader built a fort there, of which it can only be said that the house is apparently built on an ancient earthwork, whoever was its architect. The first reference to the castle is in a mention of a horse race on the heath in 1748, but it has a corner in "Clarissa Harlowe."—Manchester Guardian.

True Test of Art.

"Oh, yes, Martha sings in the choir and she has about the best voice of any one in it," boasted Martha's aunt, who may not have known much about music, but who certainly knew all about choirs.

"Isn't that boasting just a little?" gently inquired her husband.

"No, it ain't," retorted Martha's aunt. "I know she's the best singer in the lot because no one else in the choir can sing like her."—Harpurport's.

MONESSEN GETS CHARLEROI GOAT IN WARM CONTEST

Charleroi had a defeat handed it by the Monessen Page team by the score of 6 to 3 in the Monongahela valley league Saturday afternoon at Monessen. Monessen made better use of its nine hits than Charleroi did of its six in the time allotted and that was one reason for the victory.

The game was well played and interesting. Miller, the Charleroi left-fielder pulled off a jimdandy catch when he chased toward deep middle and grabbed the sailing horsehide out of the ozone with his gloved hand. Kelly in right made a sensational play by racing far for a long out and in getting it turning a couple of flipflops. The score

NEW YORK YOUNG MEN STOP HERE ON A LONG HIKE

L. W. Stevens and Bernard Krall of New York city passed through Charleroi Sunday afternoon on their hike across the continent from New York city to San Francisco, for which they are each to receive $500 if they make the entire trip by foot before February 15, 1935. They left New York city June 16, without money or any kind of equipment and wearing just ordinary clothing. They are going by way of the National Pike and will re-enter it at Zanesville, O.

Stevens is 23 years old and Krall's age is 22. A few days after Stevens and Krall had learned that they were to have charge of a certain company's safety razor display at the Panama-Pacific exposition they were talking it over in the Tiffany club in New York city. They made the statement that they believed they could walk to San Francisco. Their friends laughed at the idea and the offer of $500 to each of them was made. They are to visit the principal points along the route, and get the postmasters to place the postmark in a book they are carrying.

The young men average 25 miles a day. Their longest walk in one day was 40 miles and their greatest number of miles per hour was five. They traded their ordinary clothing at Elizabeth N. J. for a more substantial outfit. They now wear lightweight brown shirts and trousers.

In Washington D. C., they sold papers for the Washington Times for eight days and received in pay a lot of post cards with pictures on them, which they are selling to pay expenses.

They have about 3,500 miles yet to walk. They have a large fox hound with them. The young men are intending to get a camera soon and take pictures of places along their route. These they plan to sell with other things they collect.

LOCAL GARAGE CHANGES HANDS BY RECENT DEAL

An important real estate transfer has taken place within the last few days whereby H. S. Piersol, Guy Woodward and Clyde Wickerham take over by purchase the Elite Garage from Charles S. Van Voorhis and L. R. Kinder. The transfer is to be made August 1. The consideration is not given.

The entire stock and business is taken over by the new firm, but the building is not included in the purchase. Three makes of cars, the Hupmobile, the Ford and the Overland will be handled.

Mr. Kinder will remain at the garage as master mechanic. Mr. Van Voorhis will retire entirely from any connection with the garage. The garage will be known by the same name that has characterized it since its inception, the Elite.

Citizens in Omaha are frightened over an epidemic of the lockjaw. Wonder if John Lind has moved that he quoted was 17. He quoted figures to prove that only two out of every six criminals accused were ever convicted and compelled to serve ever convicted and compelled to serve Judge Kavanaugh denounced the present day method of criminals gaining respite on technicalities of law. He cited several illustrations of where justice was made more or less of joke. One instance he cited was that of the murder of an Indian. His murderer was indicted for killing a Wyandotte Indian. He was proven guilty of killing an Indian beyond any possibility of a doubt, but it could not be established that the Indian was a Wyandotte, so the assassin was freed.

"You can say what you please and think as you please," said Judge Kavanaugh, "but it is nevertheless a fact that punishment is a deterrent of crime." He proved it by citing cases with which he had had to deal. His argument that lawyers as a general rule the country over were not leaders in any comprehensive scheme of reform that would aid in the betterment of the conditions of the people was emphatically put. He said that the profession usually was represented in reform, but by a very few, and that generally the profession is to be found on the opposition side.

"Get the help of lawyers in your movements for reform," he instructed, "but if you want any reform legislation, then by all means send farmers to the legislature."

Judge Kavanaugh told his excuse for appearing before Chautauqua audiences by telling of his experiences with bar associations. He endeavored to get legislation passed through for the simplification of the law so that technicalities would be removed in the enforcement of it, and so that "justice would not be made a travesty." He said he had met defeat repeatedly at the hands of his own profession, and that now he was simply presenting the matter to the people.

On Sunday afternoon a Deane Grand Opera company trio appeared in a prelude concert that was interesting. In the evening the quartet, known as the Deane Grand Opera company gave a sacred concert as the closing feature. Their numbers consisted of quartet, duet and solo numbers. Though not singers for oratorio that previous quartets had been, their program was enjoyed. The pianist, Otto Wulf, rendered two solos that were much enjoyed.

On Saturday afternoon Walter M. Chandler, representative from the nineteenth congressional district of New York delivered a lecture on "The Trial of Jesus Christ from a Lawyer's Standpoint" that was remarkable. He declared that from a legal standpoint there was absolutely no excuse for the conviction of the Savior. Absolutely unjust in every particular was the trial, he affirmed. Congressman Chandler did not confine himself entirely to the technical legal side of the historical trial, but branched out into a practical lecture that was an intelligent exposition of the necessity of right.

Saturday night the Schumann Ladies' quartet gave an interesting prelude concert consisting of numbers of a varied nature. Tabor, a magician concluded the program with a pleasing entertainment in the art of magic.

Numerous pledges for next year's season tickets were received on Saturday afternoon and Sunday. Supt. Lester, with the aid of local committeemen directed the work of securing guarantors. On Saturday morning and afternoon Supt. Lester, Charles O. Frye and Prof. I. T. Daniel, were particularly active in this line.

BOON TO THE SMALL BOY

Stepless Cars in New York Enable Him to Procure Numerous Free Rides.

No matter what else can be said in regard to the new stepless cars now in operation on Broadway, they are certainly a boon to the small boy who depends on riding free, says the New York Times.

The advent of the pay-as-you-enter car and the success of the idea of placing a tin guard over the rear bumper, thus frustrating the efforts of those bent on obtaining free rides by sitting on the bumper, have done much to obtain all chances of riding on surface cars without paying the necessary nickel. The small boy, as usual, suffered most from these inventions.

It goes without saying that it was not an intentional act on the part of the company providing means for the small boy to ride free.

The boy waits for a crowded car at a corner where he notices some one else waiting. When that person throws into the car the boy follows, known to the conductor. The boy takes care to hide himself behind the form of an adult. The conductor on his side fails to notice the boy, and after the car has run on for a number of blocks the conductor cannot be positive the boy failed to deposit his nickel in the box.

AIR AFFECTED BY SOUND

Ventilation and Acoustics of Public Places Seem General Matter of Controversy.

The effect of ventilation on the acoustics of public halls has been a subject of investigation. Architects have found that currents or layers of air of different density interfere seriously with the passage of sound, but that a mass of moving air—if homogeneous—may have little influence. Dealers in front of the stage give especial trouble.

A book by C. Garnier mentions a new Paris theater in which air is admitted near the footlights, forming a kind of curtain between actors and spectators, and much interference results, the sound from the stage being weak, while that from the orchestra is intense.

In another theater with ventilation by heated air passed across the stage into the auditorium there was improvement in the acoustic qualities when the ventilating apparatus was working.

Another inquirer concludes that ventilation can have only slight influence in improving acoustics, that parallel layers of air may be particularly harmful, and that a single column of uniformly heated ascending air will affect sound very slightly.

By the Professor.

Professor Jones and Mrs. Jones were both of the type colloquially known as strawberry blonds. In accordance with the immemorial custom of professors' families on small salaries at this particular southern college, the Jones family grew apace. Mary, the first, was born, and her hair came perilously near to being carise. The twins lost to Mary in respect of red hair by just a shade. Johnny, the next, bade fair at three months to make Mary seem a neutral color. Now, Mrs. Jones longed for just one black-haired one. When the learned professor of ology from the scientific department dropped in for supper, Mrs. Jones almost tearfully propounded to him a question.

"O, doctor," she asked, "do you think it must always be hereditary?" The doctor looked from the aureoles of Professor and Mrs. Jones to the successive four alarms of fire-red hair on the little Joneses.

"Not so much that," he assured her at last, "as redheaded."

Putting Them "In Right."

A Canadian who had been on a pleasure jaunt to New York tells of an incident of Gotham's amusement life. He went to the Carnegie Recreum. It's a big place with several different entertainments going on at the same time in various parts of the building. On this particular day they had moving pictures of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" on the ground floor and an orchestra concert upstairs. High-brow music-lovers and patrons of the movies would have got all mixed up in looking for their respective places of entertainment if it had not been for a big-voiced negro porter who stood at the stairs to announce in stentorian tones: "Dis way to de Symphony concert. Less Miserable downstairs."

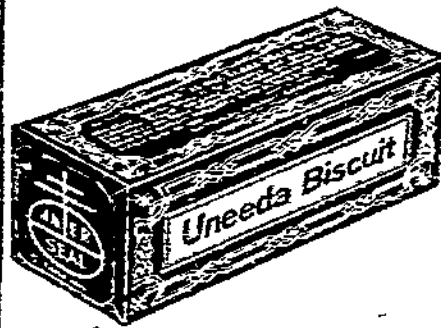

Hook and Eye.

The scene was a teachers' training college: the class one of girls; the lecturer on phonetics a gentleman with a nice taste in sarcasm. "This sound," he said, "has for symbol something even you can all remember—a dress-maker's hook; just the ordinary thing you are all familiar with." As he spoke, says the Manchester Guardian, he drew the symbol in chalk on the board, and the worried pupils all laughed. Even they—to borrow the professor's remark—knew that the "hook" depicted was an "eye."

Ozone Stimulates Yeast. A new application of ozone has just been put into use by brewers. They have discovered that the fermenting power of yeast is greatly increased by subjecting it to the influence of ozone for five minutes. The power develops only after about two days. Ozone has an inhibitive action upon objectionable organisms.

The Price She Pays.

There is hardly an American woman nowadays who can keep pace with the demands made upon her time and energy without paying the penalty of ill-health. It may be that dreadful backache, dragging pains, headaches, nervousness or the tortures of a displacement. It is the price she pays. To women in this condition Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound comes as a boon and a blessing. A simple remedy made from roots and herbs which brings glorious health to suffering women.

BOY SCOUTS

They must be willing to deny themselves for others.

Boy Scouts are organized into troops and then into smaller organizations. They are examined occasionally and promoted as they advance in the knowledge of a scout. They meet generally once a week, and often the last of the week they take a hike into the country where they receive much training in wood-craft and first-aid work. Frequently they give exhibitions of what they have learned at which times the parents and friends are invited to be present.
